IN THE KLONDIKE.

An Interesting Letter From Mr. Will H. Egerter, of This City-His Ex-periences in the Frozen North. The following letter from Mr. Will H. Egerter, of this city, now in Alaska, written to a friend in Scranton, Pa., appeared in the Tribune of that city, and will be read with interest by his Wheeling friends:

In Camp on Klutina River, Via Port Valdes, Alaska, January 29, 1899. My dear friend and all the kind friends who remembered me:

Your letters came to hand yesterday, and if I am expected to be candid I must say that they caused several drops of moisture to appear on my well-hardened cheek. I don't know how to thank you. I must not forget you, but in return I'll do what I can to interest you in the brief time at my disposal. I am now preparing to start across the mountains to the Kousina river, a description of which I will give river, a description of which I will give later.

At I resent I am nurse to Bart Hetler, of Michigan, who has been very sick all winter. Scurry is his trouble, He is failing every day, and besides taking care of my own camp, which is by no means a small job when one considers the wood necessary to keep Mr. Frost at a distance, I am acting to Mr. Hetler in the capacity of wood chopper, fire-maker, keeper-up, water carrier, cook, chambermaid and performer of any other jobs that may turn up. His appetite is not good. Of the twenty-one who are camped in this neighborhood very few are affected, but they think I have a touch of it, but I won't give in unless it gets much worse than it now is. My partner, Bob Hawkins, of lowa, has it and started a few days ago to try to reach the coast in company with some others, so I am a backelor now and will continue my pany with some others, so bachelor now and will continue backelor now and will continue my weary way alone.

The route we made this spring is first across a flat for two miles to a high ridge perhaps 2,000 feet high; over this into what we call Independence valley. Over this hog back is perhaps six or seven miles. After reaching the valley we keep up steam for five or six miles, when we again start up the next mountain toward a divide. The distance is about ten miles to the summit and is 3,500 to 4,000 feet high. Then we go down to Mauker Creek valley, five miles from the summit; then down Mauker creek to the foot of Kousina lake. At this point we cache our stuff. My outfit is not near as heavy as when I started from Valdes last, spring. Then it weighed nearly a ton; now it is not over 500 pounds.

Every inch of this trail must be made over eighteen to twenty feet of snow, and packed so a sled can be run over it. We cover the ground with snowshoes and shovels after a trail has been decided on. Then to reach the top of the hos-back a block and tackle is eary way alone. The route we me it. We cover the ground with snowshoes and shovels after a trail has been decided on. Then to reach the top of the hog-back a block and tackle is used. There will be five or six of us to try to reach the Kousina by this route. Our greatest danger will be snowslides, as we pass through several bad canons. I am perfectly acquainted with the route, as I have been over it no less than a dozen times, my last and most dangerous trip being made in November last, having had a close shave from falling down a cliff into Mauker creek, Again in returning I left ax, provisions and blanket on Mauker, thinking to reach camp that evening, but the snow was over two feet deep on the mountains and I played out after crossing the summit.

My boots were frozen to my feet and a "flip-lack" I had brought for lunch was so hard I couldn't blie it. There is no wood from Mauker to Independence. I managed to pull myself together after a time, and reach timber, where I lighted some brush, thawed my lunch and continued on my way to camp, reaching here about midnight, hearly played out.

In making these trips one must pack everything from a frying pan to a shovel, and from a gold pan, which does service to mix pan cakes when not being engaged in the more dignified occupation of panning dirt, to a piece of bayon. A pack weighs from thirty to forty pounds and usually four or five men go together, but not over eight or nine days grub can be carried.

Now that I am acquainted with the country I do not hesitate to say that I know where there is gold, and if you would find the right place you might notice a stick or two of wood-flattened on one side, and on closer examination writing would be visible. Read this and you would not fall to recognize the ignature of "yours truly."

A word about my winter quarters will perhaps interest you. My home is suilt on the antique plan of lumber with the bark on and is quite cosy. It is eight feet high in the front and six eet behind, and ten by twelve feet indie. I only wish I were artist enough of the you an idea of how it looks. It has one door, no rear entrance, at all door, no rear entranc and no windows except two eight by ten and no windows except two eight by ten panes in the door.

There is an addition on the outside—sort of a dug-out in the snow, where my dog stays. He does not seem to feel the cold and fifty degrees below zero does not affect him, as he is a Siwash Husky, or native dog. He is small and quite intelligent. He is beginning to understand some English.

feathers in their tall, which are black or in summer partly brown.

I can't tell yet when I will got to the states, and while I am satisfied with my chances of success here still-I will have to return to the United States for supplies before any real work can be done. One year is hardly enough to make a rich man, even in Alaska. All are satisfied that have claims known to contain gold in one or two years.

I'll surely try to get east to see my friends on my return, which I expect will be some time this summer.

With my best regards to yourself and all inquiring friends, I am Rheumatism Cured.

My wife has used Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism with great relief, and I can recommend it as a splendid limment for rheumatism and other household use for which we have found it valuable.—W. J. Cuyler, Red Creek, N. V.

N. Y. Mr. Cuyler is one of the leading mer-chants of this village and one of the most prominent men in this vicinity, -W. G. Phippin, editor Red Creek Her-ald. For sale by druggists.

Pleurisy and pneumonia are frequently developed, in a very short space of time, from a common cold; and, if such an acute inflammation of the lungs is not promptly allayed, the worst may happen. With the aid of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, however, you need not have any fear; for this great remedy speedily subdues the inflammation, eases the pain in breathing and always effects a cure in a wonderfully stort time.

Bullish confidence prevailed in influencing stock prices to-day which advanced almost continuously, slight setbacks regularly bringing in new buyers.
The final dealings were in large volume being in the total near the quarter of a million shares. There was continuous support by large operators accompanied by optimistic utterances. Potent alied by optimistic utterances. Potent allies of higher prices were the showing of the government crop report on winter wheat, which was better than expected, spring weather in the west, abundance of money at easier rates and Washington advices that a sudden call on the depository basits for the funds to pay the Spanish indemnity was not contemplated but that the withdrawal of government funds would be gradual, as heretofore. A sentimental influence was the knowledge that a presidential proclamation that we were at peace with Spain would be issued to-dag. The grangers were liberally purchased for western account. Vanderbilts issues continued in active request. Local transportation shares excepting Metropolitan were strong, Brooklyn Rapid Transit making an extreme gain of about nine points. The other Flower specialties were likewise heavily purchased, People's Gas moving up over 4 points. Continental Tobacco's rise of 0% was in part associated with to-dag's looking forward to a new stock issue. Southwestern group was active and strong as were the iron and steel shares. In fact before the day was ended practically everything was higher, the larger gains being among the specialties. Commission house purchases increased with the strength of the market. London was but a small factor, selling about half as much as it purchased. Call money began with large loans at 5 per cent and gradually eased off to 2 per cent. The ease of money was reflected in an appearance of more strength in the sterling exchange market, part of which was possibly due to anticipatory purchases in connection with the payment of the Spanish indemnity. The market closed strong at about the best prices.

The bond market followed stocks, but to a narrow extent. Total sales, $3,035,000.

United States 3s and the old 4s coupon advanced ½ per cent in the bid United States 3s and the old 4s cou-pon advanced 1/2 per cent in the bid price. The total sales of stocks to-day were 721,905 shares.

Atlantic port clearances of wheat and flour were 90,000 bushels, Bradstreet's reported world's visible decreased since last week 391,000 bushels, compared with 1,476,000 bushels! Increase the like week last year. In the end the market began to give heed to the little peeping note of improving prospects in Kansas, and to turn a deaf ear to the perfect howl of distress from other interests. Liquidation set in on a heavy scale and the market lost the advance about as fast as it gained it, May closing with sellers at 71,46713c. The corn market kept in range with wheat. Receipts were light and promised to remain so for some time to come, but the weather was seasonable and promising for the pushing of spring work on the farms. There was a fair cash demand. Receipts 250 cars. May opened a shade lower at 344,66344c; rose to 3%c; then dropped back to 344c, the closing price. Oats were fairly active with trade of a general character. More favorable weather caused cashness in July delivery, while the good demand for May from shippers held this delivery quite strong. Receipts 168 cars. May began a shade higher at 285,6254c; advanced to 264c; then reacted to 26c, and closed at 264c. Liquidation weakened provisions.
